The drummer, or commercial traveler, as he loves to be called, is a gay bird, and when he comes out to the fair Pacific coast there is nothing to do but follow him. He lives on the fat of the land wherever he goes, and is always ready for adventure. He will take more chances than an Apache Indian, and for some unaccountable reason he is always guarded by the Goddess of Luck or some other fellow who looks out for the evil-doer. During the past few days, aye, and nights, too, the peace officers have been looking for him, and his bloods with a longing that was exceedingly long drawn out. They have looked through every hotel and lodging-house in the city without success, and yesterday afternoon they came to the conclusion that he had left the city.

reason he was always guarded by the Goddess of Luck or some other power who looks out for her faithful devotees. During the next few days, aye, and nights, too, the peace officers of this city have wanted one of these festive bloods with a longing that was exceedingly long drawn out. They have looked through every hotel and lodging-house in the city without success, and yesterday afternoon they were about to go to the saloon where the frisky drummer and his fair companion had lit out for either San Diego or the East. The cause of this furry search was that the fellow seemed to belong to it, and is highly romantic in more ways than one. To begin at the beginning, some years ago, J. C. Johnson left his home in New York City, where he was a well-to-do man, poor, but his composition contained a goodly proportion of energy, and in time he began to accumulate property. He heard of a chance to get rich quick, so he sold off everything up his mind to go into the stock business, large ranch near Benson, Ariz., and made up his mind to go into the stock business, so he sold out his mining interests and became a cowboy. He soon found this business more prosperous than any of his ventures, and a few months ago he looked his ranches over and suddenly came to the conclusion that he was a very wealthy man. He did not have a pining sweetheart in his Eastern home, but his heart softened and he made up his mind that he should have some sweet creature by his side to help him enjoy his wealth. There were quite a number of buxom, red-cheeked farmers' daughters in made up his mind that he should have some sweet creature by his side to help him enjoy his wealth. There were quite a number of such women in the neighborhood, but they did not come up to Johnson's boyhood ideal, and he had read somewhere, probably in the Examiner, that the most beautiful women in the world walked the streets of San Francisco. He had never seen a picture of a "pickled city," and in a few days was walking Market street. For the day the bronzed-faced rancher from the cowboys' home stood on the corner of Market and Kearny streets and watched the swiftest, the prettiest, the loveliest of the "pickled city" women. One afternoon he was standing at his favorite corner, with mouth city, and in a few days was walking Market street. For days the bronzed-faced rancher from the cowboys' home stood on the corner of Market and Main streets and watched the lovely-dressed, painted-faced beauties. One afternoon he was standing at his favorite corner, with mouth and eyes wide open, when old "No Hell, No Devil" came ambling along the street. "Step right this way, gentlemen," he chanted, "step right this way, gentlemen; the finest list of marriageable ladies ever put on the market." Johnson heard the chant and was lost. He bought a paper and old "No Hell" sized him up at once. "You're a good-looking fellow, Johnson, and I will introduce you to the finest lady in the State," whispered old "No Hell," and he passed on up the street. It is not

"Come to my office, 750 Kearny street, and I will introduce you to the finest girls in the State," whispered old "No Hell," and he passed on up the street. It is not known whether Rancher Johnson kept the advice of the old "No Hell" or not. Five days he was standing before the altar, and by his side stood Miss Jessie Felton, a blushing (probably pained) young thing of nineteen. The ceremony was witnessed by the fatal words and Farmer Johnson was married to a wife who looked young enough to be his grand-daughter. The ceremony was held in the morning at 10 o'clock. The wife did not have time to get a proper wardrobe before the marriage, so Mr. Johnson engagement or not, but in less than three days he was standing before the altar, and by his side stood Miss Jessie Feinton, a young woman of 22, who had known him for certain summers. The minister pronounced the fatal words and Farmer Johnson was married to a wife who looked young enough to be his daughter. The wedding ceremony took place just three weeks ago. The young wife did not have time to get a proper wardrobe before the marriage, so Mr. Johnson and his bride were married in the same dress as he had worn at the wedding. Three days after he became a happy husband. He carried out the "old man's darling" role to perfection, and the third and fourth weeks Miss Feinton was the belle of the town in her new dresses and numerous wraps of the latest makes. Not only that, but she worked "the field" for him, and he was able to go out and on the day she bid farewell to her earthly home she convinced her fond "hubby" that $500 in pin money would be the proper compensation for her services. The next day she gave him a little tale that made him robe before the marriage, so Mr. Johnson had to remain in San Francisco two weeks after he became a happy husband. He carried the old man to his new home in perfect health, and at the end of two weeks Mr. Johnson was the happy possessor of a dozen new dresses and numerous wraps of the latest fashion. Next day he presented "the old man" for $3000 worth of diamonds, and on the day she bid farewell to her city home she convinced her fond "hubby" that she was a queen. He was a very generous man, and as he counted the crisp bills that he gave him a smile that made him happy for twenty-four hours. That afternoon they left for their new home in Santa Barbara, where Mr. Johnson wished to purchase a ranch. They arrived in good season, and the happy bridegroom of two weeks was the first to see his bride. She would have to be away from her one world day, as he was to go out in the country with a real-estate man. She was sorry, but she felt that she had to go. She was a very good host, while "hubby" was so sick, would look after her wants. They parted for a weeks informed his little sister that he had been married one week, day as he was to go out in the country with a real-estate man. She was sorry, but she felt that he was doing the right thing, and she told him that she would be a good wife and mother. The next day, however, he came back with a "real estate" man, who was so sick, would not look after his wants. They parted for a few hours, as poor John had to go to the hospital, and returned to the hotel in the evening, and rushed to his room, he was surprised to find that his wife was gone, had taken her baggage and had left him a note. It was informed that his wife and a young man, who answered to the description of one of the sailors, had left for Los Angeles. After Mr. Johnson left for the country, on making inquiries at the steamer office he learned that the ship had sailed for Los Angeles. The wretched husband lost no time in coming to this city, and for the past four days he and the officers have been searching for the ship, but without success. The woman was seen on the street the day Johnson arrived, and the officers were able to learn that she had been with a sailor lover skipped for San Diego day before yesterday. The poor old husband is not a very good man, and it is probable that he would like to see the woman disgorge her fine dresses, diamonds and what money she has, and then desert her. He will probably be able to find her, but he will probably not be able to get her back.

It was informed that his wife and a young man, who answered to the description of the drummer, had taken the steamer soon after the departure of the officers. The man, making inquiries at the steamer office, learned that the couple took passage for Los Angeles. The writer's hand failed him no time in coming to this city, and for the past four days he and the officers have been looking high and low for the guilty couple. The woman was seen on the streets of the city Johnson arrived, and the officers learned yesterday that she and her drummer had been sleeping for two days before they yesterday. The poor old husband is not after blood. All he wants is to tell them to get out of town. He has no objection to the woman disgorge her fine dresses, diamonds and what money she has left. He took the train last night and will probably be in town tomorrow. He is going to the East from Colton instead of going to San Diego.

FOR ST. LOUIS.

Another Generous Donation for the Encampment.

The following correspondence is self-explanatory:

OFFICE GLENDALE LAND COMPANY,
GLENDALE, LOS ANGELES CO. (Cal.),
June 29, 1887.

Gen. E. Bouton, Chairman General Committee, Los Angeles Cal.—Sir: Having learned through the papers of the efforts which you and your associates are making to thoroughly represent Southern California at the National Encampment to be held in St. Louis September next, and fully appreciating the good thus to be done, and the necessity of all interested in Southern California to lend a helping hand, we would respectfully ask your acceptance from this company of lot 3, block L, in the town of Glendora, to be disposed of as your committee may deem best, the proceeds to be used for the above purpose. Very respectfully yours,
By George D. Whitcomb, President,
GLENDALE LAND COMPANY.

LOS ANGELES, July 6, 1887.—George D. Whitcomb, President Glendora Land Company, Glendora, Cal.—Dear Sir: I have the honor to acknowledge the receipt of yours of June 29th, tendering lot 3, block L, in the town of Glendora, to aid the Southern California exhibit in St. Louis next September.

On behalf of the committee I accept your generous offer of this fine lot in beautiful Glendora, and thank you, not only for the contribution, but for your appreciation and encouragement of the undertaking.

On the 28th of next September occurs the Twenty-first National Encampment of the Grand Army of the Republic in St. Louis.

The attainment of its majority by this society will be celebrated by the assembly there of a hundred thousand veteran soldiers, who, with their families and friends, will number fully half a million of people. These will be met and greeted by a thousand comrades from this coast. If the Semi-Tropic California romances related by the old boys who go hence, can be corroborated by a full exhibit of the wonderful products of Southern California, we think it will inaugurate a movement hitherto with which the present boom will compare about as a picket skirmish would compare with the battle of Waterloo.

Respectfully, your obedient servant,
E. BOUTON,
Chairman General Committee.

By Telegram to the Times.

LONDON, July 6.—[By the Associated Press.] In the House of Commons today William Henry Smith, Government leader, referring to the action of the House last night in the case of the Thistle, said that the Government was opposed to an inquiry into the matter. It was the duty of the Government to establish the truth in connection with the arrest of Miss Cass.

WILL MATTHEWS RESIGN? The Press Association says there is good ground for believing that Matthews, Home Secretary, will not resign, notwithstanding the action of the House of Commons last night.

The Pall Mall Gazette says: "If Matthews was a man of honor and a gentleman, this morning's papers would have announced that he had resigned. His crowning last night's Ministerial career of almost continuous failure by exhibiting combined incapacity almost unprecedented."

WILLING TO STEP DOWN.

LONDON, July 6.—The conduct of the Government over the case of the Thistle has caused discontent even among the warmest supporters of the Ministers. The explanation made in the Commons was heard in the lightest silence, except when Smith announced that the Lord High Chancellor would institute a thorough inquiry into the matter. In consequence of the feeling in the Conservative party, Matthews has offered to resign the office of Home Secretary. He has been requested, however, to remain in office until the close of the present session of Parliament.

Two nights will be allowed for debate on the third reading of the Crime Bill. If the Opposition endeavors to prolong the discussion, the Government will move that the clause be applied.

ONE HUNDRED LIVES LOST.

BERNE, July 6.—All the new quays at Zug fell into the lake. Forty houses, the crowded inn and the Hotel Zurich, a four-story structure, full of visitors, vanished entirely. The occupants of the buildings were engulfed while they slept, and at least 100 persons perished, including M. Collins, President of the canton. Men are now at work trying to recover the bodies of the victims. An infant was found alive in a floating cradle.

BERLIN, July 6.—Advices from Dortmund say that the Russian and Westphalian hromasters have decided not to allow the prices of pig-iron.

The Emperor has conferred on Count Hohenhausen the order of the Grand Cross of Prussia. In a letter accompanying the decoration, the Emperor says that after the last successful session of the Reichstag, to the results of which the gratifying elections in Saxony, Germany, were greatly contributed, he held a lively desire to give his satisfaction by expressing his appreciation by conferring upon a delegate from Saxony this high honor.

The North German Gazette, referring to the French Foreigners' Tax Bill, says the moment seems to have arrived for Germany to consider whether all anti-German measures which are being carried out in France should not in full reciprocal manner be enforced in Germany, especially in Alsace-Lorraine.

GLADSTONE TO HARTINGTON.

LONDON, July 6.—Gladstone today wrote a letter to Hartington, in answer to his reply to the ex-Premier's speech of last Saturday. In this letter Gladstone says he deemed it his duty to refer in his speech to the differences which existed between him and Lord Hartington on the Irish question when they were members of the same government. "It is not necessary," he says, "that the Marquis of Hartington should be answerable for any incoherence attending such retrospective references. If they are accurate, the Marquis will willingly consent to the publication of anything deemed necessary to show it." In conclusion Gladstone reaffirmed the statements he made on Saturday.

END OF THE TREASON TRIALS.

LEIPZIG, July 6.—In the treason trial today the procurator demanded nine years at hard labor for Klein, five years for Greber, and the acquittal of Ehrhart. The procurator declared that it was necessary that the trial should be public, as only publicity could refute the aspersions and exaggerations of the French press over the Schnaebelen incident. The trial, he said, had brought to light the fact that the French frontier police not only countenanced treason, but incited it. Judgment will be pronounced upon the prisoners on Friday.

FOUGHT WITH GEN. WASHINGTON.

HAVANA, July 6.—The English mail steamer for St. Thomas, which arrived here today, brings the following: "Peter Baril, who took part in the American revolution under Gen. Washington, has died in Demerara, aged 130 years."

PARIS, July 6.—The committee of the Chamber of Deputies having in charge the measure imposing a tax on foreigners residing in France, today heard M. EVERY HOUSE RUINED.

Further Accounts of the Great Earthquake at Baviere.

TUCSON, Ariz., July 6.—[By the Associated Press.] The State's attorney at Baviere, Sonora, of the 24th, are to the effect that Prof. F. S. Clarke has been here nine days under the auspices of the Government engaged in the investigation of the traces left by the earthquake of May 3d and the succeeding shocks. The damage done to Baviere is complete. Not a house is left standing and by far the greatest number are shapeless ruins. The people of the ruined town, some 800 in number at the time of the shock, are now living in rude shacks hastily erected on the upper mesa above the town. One hundred and sixty were buried in the ruins caused by the first shock. Of this number thirty-six were taken out and thirty-seven more or less hurt. From the time the first shock occurred, at 3 a.m. May 3d, there has been a succession of shocks noted, and Prof. Clarke is of the opinion that with the exception of the week included between the 8th and 15th of June there has not been an appreciable interval of time when the earth in that region has been "at rest." The center of disturbance is northwest of Baviere. An active volcano is reported seventy-five miles south of the place, to which a party of explorers have been dispatched.

FOLLOWED HIS COMRADE.

Another Guardsman Drowned in the Russian River.

HEALDSBURG, July 6.—Christopher Kuhn, a member of Company C, Second Artillery Regiment, was accidentally drowned in Russian River shortly after 11 a.m. today. His body was recovered. This is the second drowning since the troops went into camp. Kuhn was in bathing in company with Chief Trumpeter Briggs and Private Sturtevant, of Co. B, of the same regiment. Kuhn was drowned within two feet of the shore that led up to the bank. Sturtevant was nearly drowned, as he went under twice, and was saved by Briggs. Kuhn was under the water for half an hour, and the cause of his death was of no avail. Dr. McAllister, surgeon of the regiment, attributes the accident to the extreme heat of the atmosphere, and to the coldness of the water. Kuhn was a good swimmer. He was 30 years old and unmarried.

MORE CHICKENS.

Mr. Casullo's Bill of Particulars Against the Chicken Raisers.

In Justice Taney's court yesterday the case of Casullo vs. Lavagnini—which was commenced last March, but had to be continued because the wife of the complainant and one of his principal witnesses were attacked with the smallpox—was resumed. As may be surmised by the names of the parties to the suit, this case was another of those exasperating chicken cases, in which the patience of the Judge, the witnesses and the counsel was completely worn out in endeavoring to elicit from the witnesses the kernel of truth in the mass of evidence advanced by each party. The case was for prosecution, and J. Lazarevich, Jr., for the defendant.

It seems from what could be gleaned that the complainant was a market gardener and that the defendant was a chicken fancier, whose morals were so lax that he allowed his feathered pets to roam at large over the country and collect from his neighbors sufficient food for their proper sustenance. This, taking into consideration the fact that Casullo's garden was distant from Lavagnini's chickens but a few yards, naturally caused the industrious gardener to lose a large portion of his crop.

So matters had been going on for three several years, till Mr. Casullo came to the conclusion that the defendant had ceased to be a virtuous, and seeking legal advice, he was told that he had a good suit for damages against Mr. Lavagnini—for the injury done the growing law. This was what Casullo was after, and he at once commenced suit against his henching neighbor, introducing into the case a mass of particulars, which, as he explained in court, would have been for $100 instead of $10 had it not been for the fact that the complainant—"was a nice man" and would not strain his conscience in the matter on any account.

Damage done to potatoes.....$1.00
Damage done to peas.....1.00
Damage done to barley.....2.50
Damage done to cauliflower.....1.50
Damage done to cabbage.....1.50
Damage done to grapes.....1.50

Total.....$10.00

Instead of being grateful for the forbearance exhibited by the complainant, the defendant had the nerve to come into court and make a tender of $1, hoping thereby to assuage the anger of the judge of his neighbor, but in this he reckoned without his host, for the tender was indignantly declined, and the suit proceeded until both sides had all the law they wanted, and the case was decided by His Honor in favor of Mr. Casullo, who, having won, what was dearer than the damages—his revenge—was exultant over the fact that he had been given a verdict for the full amount of his claim, as well as the costs in the suit.

South Riverside.

"GEM OF THE CITRUS BELT."

Phenomenal in Growth and Prosperity

Note carefully some of the points in favor of South Riverside as a place for investment, residence or business. It is located about 40 miles east of Los Angeles and 14 miles south-west of Riverside, on the new Santa Fe line, and at the junction of the Pomona, South Riverside and Elsinore Railroad; it is the center of a very fertile fruit-growing and rich mineral section; it is a part of the great orange belt, where can be grown to perfection all kinds of fine fruits and plants known to Southern California.

The tract is subdivided into lots of 5 and 10 acres, and present prices are much lower than elsewhere for the same soil and similar conditions. There are three water systems that will furnish an ample supply for irrigation and domestic use.

In addition to the general fruit interests, there are many kinds of mineral and clay that will come into use for building, piping, tiling, etc. White and black sulphur springs, hot and cold, are only a short distance from the townsite. These springs have long been known for their excellent curative properties. There are several miles of rich valley land tributary, while the place has within itself all the elements of successful growth and prosperity.

The town of South Riverside is most unique and inviting. A three-mile grand boulevard encloses the place. This broad avenue will be lined on each side with the choicest variety of plants and trees; from every part of the town the view is magnificent—unsurpassed for extent and variety.

A large amount of permanent improvement is well under way. A fine three-story hotel occupies a central block. The building is modern in design, complete in appointments, and will soon become a delightful resort for health and pleasure seekers. A large bank block is going up, which in design and finish will be a credit to any place. A number of costly residences are building and many more are under contract to go up soon.

Ample provision is made for all public needs and no effort is spared to beautify and adorn the place. Ground is reserved for schools, churches and parks.

South Riverside will become noted for beauty of location, fine climate, active business, having all the advantages of a railroad center, and being near to Los Angeles and within easy reach of mountain and ocean resorts.

Within six months lots and lands have doubled—in some cases quadrupled—in value. The same property will no doubt double again in the next six months. Everything now gives promise of growth and advance in values unprecedented in the history of such enterprises. For prices, maps and full particulars see

F. M. CHOGUILL, South Riverside Agency, 34 North Spring street.

Words are inadequate to describe the beauties of this romantic spot.

The maps and price-lists will be distributed on the 1st of July. The sale will open at 9 a. m. on THURSDAY, July 14th, by W. H. Holabird, at room 4, Wilson Block, Los Angeles, Cal.; San Bernardino, by T. J. Wilson; Riverside, by C. E. Kibbey; Santa Ana, by Holabird, Gardiner & Co.

There will be no auction, the demand for these lots being unprecedented in the history of real-estate transactions.

Mr. J. J. LaGrange, a prominent druggist at Avoca, Neb., says: "I consider Chamberlain's Cough Remedy a specific for Croup. It is very pleasant to take, which is one of the most important requisites, where a cough remedy is intended for use among children. I have known of cases of spasmodic croup where I know the life of a little one was saved by the use of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy." Sold by C. H. Hance, 77 and 79 North Spring street.

Mr. C. H. Shawen, Wellsville, Kan., says: "It is with pleasure that I can speak of the good Chamberlain's Cough Remedy and Diphtheria Remedy has done in my family during the last thirteen years. In the most obstinate cases of summer complaint and diarrhoea among my children it acts as a charm, making it never necessary to call in a physician. I can truthfully say that it is my judgment based on years of experience, that there is no medicine in the market that is its equal as a family remedy, and that I will never keep house without a bottle of it in my possession." THE ANTI-LIQUOR CLAUSE RETAINED.

LOS ANGELES, July 6.—[In behalf of the officers of the Long Beach Land and Water Company I would state that the sale to the Long Beach Development Company was made with the covenant prohibiting the sale of intoxicating liquors. Also that an additional 800 acres purchased of Mr. Bixby, adjoining, was also sold with the same promise, and if the new company desired to do so it could not sell to avoid the liquor clause, as any transgression would make the land revert to the Long Beach Land and Water Company. The Wrong Customer.
[Exchange.]

He was the greenest old man you ever saw. He looked around the passenger coach in a way to prove that he had never entered one before, and he sat down so softly, and seemed to be afraid of damaging something, that all the passengers smiled.

By and by a young man went over and sat down beside him. This young man might have been directed by filial affection, and he might not. "Which way, uncle?" he softly asked.

"Me? Oh, I'm going to see my darter in Connecticut."

"Ever traveled much?"

"This is the first time I was ever on the keers. I've driven off seventeen miles with the oxen to see my other darter, but oxen hasn't no comparison to these here keers."

"I should say not. It takes a lot of money to go to Connecticut and back."

"Dreftful lot, but I jist sold the farm, you know."

"I presume you could change a hundred-dollar bill for me?"

"O, jist as well as not."

"I may want you to by and by. This is good weather, eh?"

"Strandary weather fur fall. James has been worried about his corn, but I guess it's all right."

Nothing further was said for some time, the old man looking out of the window, and the young man reading a paper. The train made a few stops, and the car was so warm that after a while the old man began to yawn and nod. He fought it off for ten minutes, but at last his head fell back, and his gentle snore mingled with the roar of the wheels.

A slim, white hand, with tapering fingers, rested on his leg. Then it was elevated to his breast. Its owner was that of a feather. Its movements were that of a serpent creeping forward to strike. The fingers touched an old-fashioned wallet. The young man continued to read, and the old man slept on. Inch by inch the wallet was lifted from its snug resting-place, and the hand was almost ready to remove it entirely, when something happened. With a sudden movement of his right hand the old man pinned the interloper fast, and his voice was heard calling:

"You blamed skunk! But I knowed all the time what you were after! Where is the conductor?"

There was a rush of passengers, and they found a helpless, confused pickpocket and an indignant, but yet elated old man.

"Consarn his pictur', but he took me for an old haystack from a back median! I work roots on me, will ye? Set a trap for me and fell into it yerself, eh?"

Even a professional pickpocket hadn't cheek enough to urge a single excuse. The fellow hadn't one blessed word to say, and was walked off to the baggage-car, to be kicked to the platform at the next station.

"Ye see," said the old man, as he turned to the inquiring passengers, "I hadn't order done it. When a man has been constable, sheriff or driver all his days, travelin' all over and meetin' with all sorts of folks, he hadn't order play off greenhorn and beak a young man's heart like this, but I felt sorter reckless this mornin'."

State of Trade—Business Prosperous—Great Building Boom.
[San Francisco Chronicle.]

R. G. Dun & Co., in their weekly review of trade today, say: The week has been one of satisfactory business for the season, but of unusual disturbance in speculation. Liquidation has reached the stock market. A week ago, even while the review was being written, sharp attacks began, and the recovery was especially rapid, but the liquidation in prices this week, notwithstanding the very favorable reports of earnings, indicates that the process of liquidation may not in all directions have been contemplated. At their lowest, stocks were down to the level of January last, as their highest in May had accounted for a reaction and their highest average before the break in December.

The corner in June wheat at New York succeeded as completely as the Chicago corner failed, and the prices made have been so palpably artificial that June delivery sold on the last day of the month 25¢ above the same grade for July. Non-liquidity cash wheat fell 21 cents on Friday, though the actual price for other uses than the settlement of speculative contracts was not above 85¢ cents on Thursday and 85¢ on Friday. The Chicago market has been quiet, with eastward shipments of 3,000,000 bushels, exports all the lines to the west, capacity. June exports have been large, but the stock carried over to the new crop this year will not be much below 5,000,000 bushels in excess of the minimum, and crop reports are generally favorable, though the prolonged drought in some parts of the North-west causes apprehension and may lessen the yield.

From Omaha and some other points come reports that the real-estate excitement has abated, though prices are maintained and large sums are being expended in buildings. It was estimated some weeks ago from the returns at New York, where the proportion of the building in one month has been 4.41 per cent, the assessed valuation of real estate, that the sun thus invested throughout the country must be very large. Official returns for five months from thirty-five cities of all sizes and in various parts of the country now show that the value of new buildings in the time was 4.13 per cent. of the assessed valuation of all real estate there in 1887. So far the mileage is 500 above that of last year to date, but about 500 miles below the completed work to date in 1880, 1881 or 1883, and 2500 miles below the record in 1884. May and June returns exceed last year's but little, but the new securities listed at the Stock Exchange already exceed $100,000,000 in stock and $100,000,000 in bonds, which in part accounts for the hesitation in prices.

General reports are almost without exception satisfactory, trading good for this time of the year. Collections are fair and better, and money is in reasonable supply at all interior points. The disasters at Chicago and Cincinnati to have had but little effect elsewhere. A most encouraging feature is the settlement as to wages in Massachusetts on a 10 per cent. advance and the closing of the builders' strike in Chicago. The shoemakers' strike in Massachusetts and the ore-handlers' strike at Cleveland, and the coke strike keeps the coke furnaces idle, and the stocks of iron west of the mountains are thought to have fallen from 194,778 tons, May 1st, to 150,000. An advance in August is hoped for, and old rates have risen in the past week. The coal output for the half-year will exceed by 100,000 tons the largest previous output, and an advance in prices is predicted.

In other branches of trade the condition is reported satisfactory for this season. Monetary anxiety continues, however. The bank surplus never has been as low at this time of any previous year, and the treasury has taken $1,500,000 in gold while putting out $1,400,000 in currency. The heaviest withdrawal of bank bonds ever reported on a single day naturally attends the maturing of the last call for 3 per cent. and the treasury officials are disappointed because the new deposits for circulation reached only $1,000,000. The one open supply of money is the London market, but recent events have caused some sales of stock on foreign accounts, and merchandise exports from New York fall 8 per cent. below, while imports rise 10 per cent. above those of last year for June.

Justifiable Killing.
[San Bernardino Courier.]

Bradley C. Gray, the man, with Dol Martin, had the little unpleasantness with the Indian shepherd in Bear Valley, in which the latter was fatally hurt, arrived in San Bernardino Thursday, and yesterday went before Justice Parker and gave bonds in the sum of $2000, with Gus Knight, Sr., and John King as sureties. The County local reporter interviewed Mr. Gray, and received the following information in regard to the killing: "After Dol and I had talked to the Indian we rode off a little way, when Dol called my attention to the loose condition of my cinch. I got down, and while tightening my cinch, the Indian commenced firing at us. He fired three shots, striking me in the leg and killing Martin's horse. I had no thought of his firing, and had my back to him when he shot at me. I fell when the bullet struck me, and the Indian rushed at me as though he were mad. With my left hand I got my pistol out, and just as my assailant came close to me, I let drive at him. We were so close together that the powder smoke and the sound of the shot were on the ground, and though he intended to brain me. After emptying his pistol the Indian snapped the instrument several times, then ran off some distance and dropped. I had no thought of a shooting scrape, and am certain that Martin entertained no such idea."

Gray is a bright-looking young man, about 23 years of age, and has no appearance of the desperado order. He said to the reporter that he had never been in Texas, and the statement that he was a cowboy was entirely without foundation, as he had never seen Texas, nor was he a cowboy. The trial of Martin and Gray is set for next Friday. They both feel confident that nothing will be done in the matter. Gray's wounded leg is getting better.

BONNIE BROOKLYN HEIGHTS! GRAND DISTRIBUTION OF LOTS

12 Large Lots, 50x200, and 60x360.

REECE'S ADDITION TO OCEANSIDE!

—TO TAKE PLACE—

MONDAY - - - - - AUGUST 1, 1887.

230-LOTS-230 EACH $150-EACH-$150.

WITH A CHANCE OF GETTING ONE HOUSE WORTH $1000, ONE HOUSE WORTH $500, one house worth $700, one house worth $800, and one of five houses worth $500 each.

REECE'S ADDITION adjoins the beautiful town of Oceanside on the northeast, one-half mile from the beach, just far enough to be protected from the cool winds off the ocean, but commanding a beautiful view of the water, making it the most delightful and desirable point for residence.

The addition lies three or four hundred yards east of the Oceanside Water Company's pipe-line, and the company agrees to put water upon the tract as soon as building has commenced.

OCEANSIDE is destined to be the Cape May and Long Branch of the Coast. It is situated on the California Southern Railroad, forty miles north of San Diego. Grading has already begun on the Santa Ana branch out of Oceanside, making the junction of the two roads. It is also the terminus of the San Diego Central, and is on the very route of Southern Pacific, and is rapidly building up. There are now some six or seven hundred inhabitants and about fifty places of business.

There are now two good hotels in operation and a new one nearly completed, which will cost, without furniture, in the neighborhood of $50,000. Plans for a still larger and finer one are now in the hands of the architect. A large two-story brick, 100 feet square and two stories, is now under construction for a bank, on the corner of Hill street, and about five minutes' walk from the addition.

Work will begin on the wharf the coming week. It is to be 1500 feet long, with 35 feet of water at low tide. It is to cost $50,000, and all the stock is taken. A syndicate of Eastern capitalists has bought all the water at Monarist and Pala, and are at work now piping the cool mountain water into the town of Oceanside, and the pipe-line will cross or pass very near to the addition.

Reece Bros. bind themselves to build the above-described houses ready to hand the key to the lucky owners in the distribution at the same time with the deed. For further particulars and maps inquire of

...and the French language is still spoken and many of the dwellers are straight haired, dark skinned half breeds, with a patois that is altogether charming. The women are generally quite good looking, with their rich, healthy color, flashing black hair and eyes and voices soft and pleasant.

Soon after the war a syndicate purchased all of the land about La Pointe from the government. The syndicate was composed of Senator Beckwith of Kentucky, Gen. Bob Toombs of Georgia, the late Vice President Hendricks and several eastern men. They expected a great city to spring up here and purchased thousands of acres merely as a speculation. A few years ago a story was started at Washington that the land had been given to the parties as some kind of a bribe, and it created a big sensation for a time. The story was entirely without foundation.

Until a few years ago this place could only be reached after a long and monotonous lake voyage. Now no less than four railroads enter Ashland and it has prospects of being a stoppage place of one of the contemplated transportation lines reaching from ocean to ocean. Ashland itself is a beautiful summer resort, on the banks of Chequamegon bay, an inlet of Lake Superior. It has recently become the lake shipping point of the Gogebic iron region, and is now celebrated as having two of the largest ore docks in the world.

KEIFER'S MISHAP.

How He Caught a Big Sturgeon in the Big Wolf River.

(Special Correspondence.)

WYOMING, Wyo., June 17.

We went up the Big Wolf river as far as Shickton to try sturgeon spearing. The river flows by only about four rods of the hotel at which we stopped, and is broad and deep with a swift current.

The fishing is done with gaff hooks and spears, which, by the way, are managed oddly enough. The socket of the spear fits loosely on the handle. A stout cord is attached to it, and thence to the handle, and when a sturgeon is struck he is allowed to run the length of the cord, and then must be hauled in by main strength.

Fully equipped and instructed, we set out in a boat alone, although the polite landlord warned us we ought to have an experienced hand along. But we thought ourselves equal to any occasion and declined company.

The gaff had four wicked looking hooks upon it, and Keifer selected that as his weapon, leaving me the spear, at which I looked rather dubiously.

We rowed steadily until a broad stretch of water some distance from town was reached that had been described to us as a good place for sport. The banks were lined with pine trees, the current was smooth and even; an ideal fishing ground.

Keifer lowered the gaff into the water, and, letting the lead drift I watched for a victim. A long time passed. Several fish were visible, but at too great a distance for a thrust. Suddenly Keifer jerked his pole up, and, and came near overturning the boat.

"Main Gott, I haf been," he yelled.

Then followed a struggle I shall never forget. The fat, burly German tugging and pulling at the pole, his ludicrous endeavors to preserve his balance in the narrow boat, his round, fat face staring at me and his eyes fairly starting from their sockets. All this, and my own frantic struggles to keep the boat right side up, was enough to provoke a saint to laughter. I knew by the indications that he had struck a wondrously big fish, and was sure he could never capture it alone. When he began to show signs of exhaustion I offered to assist him. To my amazement he turned an angry look upon me, and gasped an indignant protest.

"Shower, see you touch dis fish, I will shoot you. Dis fish my game see I goes under and home."

I did not reply, but made up my mind such would be his fate. The huge fish would rise to the surface as far from the boat as the pole would permit, then dash madly up and down, rocking the boat fearfully, and requiring all the skill of which I was possessed to keep it from overturning.

"Better let me help, Keifer."

"Shut up," he answered savagely. "Hil be yelled as the creature made a sudden dive. Over went Keifer.

"My soul, what a sight! For an instant his fat, pudgy legs stuck up straight into the air, then down he went—souse! His yell as he went over was unearthly, and was echoed by a loud burst of laughter from behind us. Turning I saw a boat load of people who had followed to watch the greenhorns fish. They came at once to our assistance, and together we dragged Keifer into the boat, more dead than alive, but still grasping the handle of the gaff. Several of the men seized it, and after some time succeeded in securing the monstrous fish, which tipped the beam at ninety pounds. Long and loud was their raucous over Keifer's attempt to land a sturgeon alone. I did not care to try my luck. We put out for another lake.

A lady had the bad luck to step on her diamond bar pin and break the fastening. The ring for a messenger, and sat down to write a note that the boy could mail on his way to the hotel. As she was directing the envelope the boy entered.

"Take that," she said extending the pin, and never looking up, as she finished the superscription, intending to add "to the jeweler's at the corner and wait for it."

But the small tough, not much higher than the table, broke in before she could finish her sentence, with "How much do you want to get on it?"

The astonished lady looked at the little ruffian in amazement. "How much do I want to get on it?" she repeated.

"Yes, you want me to pound it, don't yer?" "Pound it? Mercy, no. I just stepped on it and have broken the pin."

"That don't stop the sparkle. I guess yer kin git twenty cimes on it."

"Why, boy, what are you talking about?"

"Oh! come off! Der yer want me to hock it, don't yer? What's yer racket?"

The lady called for help. She had heard that the inmate possessed unnatural strength, and though this young cub didn't weigh ninety she couldn't tell what he might do if he was as crazy as he talked. It was not until the servant acted as interpreter that the hoodlum was made to understand the breach was to go to a jeweler to be repaired, instead of a pawnbroker's shop; but the boy explained that most all the ladies who send such things by him "was spouters, and was raisin' the wind on their spurs and sparkles."—Pittsburg Dispatch.

440 Acres in the Highland Park Tract.

This property is about four miles from the courthouse, 1/4 mile from the Aitchison, Topeka and Santa Fe Railroad station at Highland Park, 1 1/2 miles from Garvanzo. The land is rolling, hilly land, with an abundance of territory well adapted to subdivision, and with a large number of hills and knolls suitable for elegant villa sites, with a full view of the whole of the surrounding country. The soil is rich and susceptible of cultivation. There are from ten to fifteen large, undeveloped springs on it which, when developed, will produce an unlimited amount of water. The tract is bordered by what is known as the Reddick to Highland Park, and a portion of the Judson and Morgan tracts. Within one-eighth of a mile from it the Morgan tract is subdivided on the hills and lots selling for $250. There are four of the most beautiful sites for an hotel that are in this country, and they are very easily reached by constructing roads at a nominal cost. This property can be had cheap up to July 18th and a large sum realized from it in a short time. The surrounding low, level lands all around this piece of land cannot be purchased for less than $1000 per acre. A large creek constitutes the northern boundary of the land, on the other side of which is the land owned by Mr. Glassell. There is a water right in a large reservoir on the Glassell property which goes with this land. This property is to be sold at once, and for that reason the price has been placed unusually low, in order to guarantee a quick disposition of it. Price, $215 per acre; half cash.

Free carriages to see any of these properties. We are agents for Phoenix Land Improvement Company, Phoenix, Ariz.; Long Beach lands, Newcastle, Placer county, lands, Marietta lands, Union Central Insurance Company of Cincinnati, Ohio, and the Vanderink Improvement Company, of Monrovia, Cal.
